

SGD MEMBERS STAR IN ART OF THE GARDEN

GARDENS DESIGNED BY five members of the Society of Garden Designers are the stars of a new six-part TV series of Art of the Garden, now airing on Sky Arts.

Luciano Giubbilei MSGD explains how both the local architecture and the vast, ancient landscape that surrounds his Tuscany Garden influenced his design while, in her Cool Garden at RHS Garden Rosemoor, Jo Thompson FSGD considers the civilising influence of beautiful architecture and spaces and how colour and light can create emotion in a garden.

Andy Sturgeon FSGD recalls how he created a 'garden in the sky' on what was, when he first visited the site, a non-existent rooftop at the Battersea Power Station, and Ann-Marie Powell FSGD takes viewers around her Wildlife Garden at the RHS Garden Wisley, designed to help nurture nature. Finally, pre-registered member Alistair Baldwin assesses the importance of a palimpsest, or layers of interest, in the creation of his new garden (pictured) at Kinross House in Scotland.

The series runs until 13 June on Sky Arts and is also available to view on catch-up.
